MME. NHU CALLS A HALT—Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu, sister-in-law of Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem, thrusts out arms and exclaims "Enough! I must go" as she leaves beauty shop in Rome after getting an Italian-style hairdo. She has been on tour of Europe and plans to visit the United States next month. (AP Wirephoto)

Polite Cold Shoulder Is Due Mrs. Nhu

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials have decided on a policy of chilly correctness—the polite cold shoulder—for dealing with Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu when she arrives in the United States.

"Nobody wants to get involved in the shouting match with a pretty woman," one diplomat said in commenting on the bitterly critical First Lady of South Vietnam. "You can't win anything that way."

No Desire for Debate

The rejoinder made Thursday by Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge to Mrs. Nhu's attack on U.S. servicemen fighting communism in her country was prompted by morale considerations rather than by any readiness to engage in public debate with her, informants here said.

Mrs. Nhu, wife of the powerful brother of South Vietnam's bachelor president, Ngo Dinh Diem, had denounced what she called junior officers of the U.S. military mission for "acting like little soldiers of fortune."

Deserve Thanks

Lodge said in Saigon that the Americans are engaged in a struggle with Communist guerrilla forces and "should be thanked and not insulted."

"These junior officers are risking their lives every day," he said. "It is incomprehensible to me how anyone can speak so cruelly."

In Rome later Mrs. Nhu again referred to "adventurers and saboteurs" among U.S. officers and brushed aside Lodge's criticism of her earlier remarks.

This was about the reaction which had been expected here.

Is Troublemaker

In the White House and State Department she is regarded as a shrill-voiced gadfly and troublemaker whose long record of bitter attacks on the United States has had the result chiefly of building up antagonism to her. (Continued on Page 8, Col. 7)

Los Angeles Too Hot Even For Smog - 108 Mercury

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Los Angeles residents, baked by two days of near-record heat, braced for a third day in the oven today, with no relief in sight.

The weatherman predicted a high of 108 today after Thursday's high of 109.

It was even too hot for smog Thursday. When the mercury hit 101 the air pollution forced its way through the layer of warm air that normally acts like a stove to keep smog packed in the Los Angeles basin.

Other things escaped, too, such as many school children, city office workers and anyone who did not have to stay on the job. Downtown streets at noon were unusually quiet.

Thousands mobbed the beaches and bathers and surfers vied for the 76-degree water.

For those who weren't in the water or at its edge, the air was still hot—107 degrees—and the sand was worse. A sand tempera-

Bids Conservatives Avoid Ruining GOP

NEW YORK (AP)—Walter J. Mahoney, Republican majority leader of the State Senate, urges the state's Conservative Party not to be a "spoiler" and seek to destroy GOP control of the Legislature.

Mahoney, a conservative Republican from Buffalo, concedes it is "entirely possible" that the Conservatives could destroy the GOP legislative majorities.

Holds Out Olive Branch

Mahoney, addressing the first anniversary dinner of the Conservative Party Thursday night, held out the olive branch as he had in the past.

He was first greeted by a standing ovation. But his speech was frequently interrupted by cat-calls and hoots as he sought to emphasize points of agreement between the Republican and Conservative parties.

The Conservative Party, composed mostly of Republicans, is fighting Gov. Rockefeller and other GOP leaders it charges are too liberal to be real Republicans. It has announced its support of Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona for President and said it will run an independent candidate in New York State if Rockefeller is the Republican presidential nominee.

Would Be Dreadful Blow
Mahoney told the dinner gathering of 750 persons that if the Conservative Party destroyed Republican majorities in the Legislature in promoting the party's program, it would "be dealing a dreadful blow to the cause of conservatism and handing the legislative power in this state over to those whose philosophy is diametrically opposed" to the Conservative Party's.

Mahoney, who works in political unity with Rockefeller most of the time, said the Republicans "had better face up" to the fact that "the Conservative Party of New York State is in business, it's a going organization." The party drew 140,000 votes in the gubernatorial election last November.

The senator said he follows a "dynamic conservative philosophy" and he called the movement one of the "greatest socio-economic phenomena of our times."

Warns Extremists

David H. Jaquith, Syracuse businessman who was the Conservative Party candidate for governor against Rockefeller last November, told the dinner gathering that conservative extremists may damage their movement.

"I'm not going to follow blindly any Republican," he said, "but let's not lose touch with reality. I don't want to vote for the lesser of two evils, but I don't want to see us running around, cutting off our nose to spite our face."

Kieran O'Doherty, Conservative Party candidate for U.S. senator last November, drew sustained applause when he called Goldwater the "established front-runner" for the Republican presidential nomination.

Both U.S. and Vietnamese officers in the field said McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, that the Buddhist crisis had diminished neither the scale of military operations in the north nor the morale of Vietnamese troops.

Arthur Sylvester, Assistant Secretary of defense, said the reports indicated the impact of the Buddhist campaign was "markedly different in the countryside from that in the cities."

Sylvester painted a generally favorable picture of the U.S.-Vietnamese military effort in the north and added there was ground for "low-key optimism."

"We appear to be moving forward," Sylvester said. "Our operations are not completely successful, but they're improving and are expected to improve more."

As evidence of continued cooperation from villagers in spite of the Buddhist crisis, Sylvester said the peasantry was showing a greater willingness to report guerrilla movements and that there were fewer Viet Cong attacks and more government patrols.

As President Kennedy's chief military advisers toured the country, the people of South Vietnam went to the polls to elect a new 123-member National Assembly.

Vote No Influence
Results of the election were expected to have no influence on the authoritarian policies of President Diem and his brother Ngo Dinh Nhu, the president's chief adviser. The assembly has had virtually rubber-stamp status since Diem started ruling by decree in 1961.

"The concept of a loyal opposition is alien to the form of government here," one top American diplomat commented.

Better Than Nothing
"We tend to make light of these elections," another American observer said. "But they are democracy of a rudimentary sort. This is better than nothing."

Nhu put himself forward as a candidate for the first time, running as an "independent." It is expected that he will be named president of the assembly. His reasons for seeking elective office were not known.

Nhu's politically powerful wife, who acts as First Lady for the bachelor president, was an "independent" candidate for re-election to the assembly. Both she and her husband were unopposed.

Mino Sentences Four, Others on Monday, 2 P.M.

Four defendants were sentenced in County Court Thursday afternoon after entering pleas of guilty. Four others who entered pleas of guilty will be sentenced on Monday, Oct. 14 at 2 p. m.

Assistant District Attorney Francis Vogt moved for sentence in the case of James Kieran, 51, 37 Broadway, who had pleaded guilty to violation of a charge of possession of policy slips as a misdemeanor. Prior to sentencing an information was filed with the court charging Kieran with having on November 21, 1960, been convicted of violation of Section 970 of the Penal Law, a section of the gambling laws. Judge Mino sentenced Kieran to 30 days in the county jail.

Walkill Too Hard

Floyd Julius Daniels, 28, of Plattsburgh, entered a plea of guilty to escape from Walkill prison. A 2 to 4 year sentence to Clinton State Prison at Dannemora was imposed. Harry Gold appeared by assignment of the court and stated that Daniels had been serving time at Dannemora, which is near his Plattsburgh home. He had been transferred against his will to Walkill prison where he was compelled to work harder than at Clinton, received less pay and had been unable to see his relatives.

As a result he decided to take off. Daniels was also indicted along with Emanuel Peter Brown on a charge of third degree burglary and unlawful entry arising out of their escape.

Attorney Gold asked for dismissal of that charge and noted that the two defendants had not molested the occupant of the house, an elderly woman, and (Continued on Page 8, Col. 4)

Buddhist Crisis No Hindrance

War Continuing Against Viet Cong

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara toured Viet Nam's central highlands today after receiving reassuring reports that the Buddhist campaign against President Ngo Dinh Diem had not hindered the war against the Communists in the northern part of the country.

Morale Stable

Both U.S. and Vietnamese officers in the field said McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, that the Buddhist crisis had diminished neither the scale of military operations in the north nor the morale of Vietnamese troops.

JFK Sees Retreat In Goldwater Policy

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—President Kennedy has taken sharp issue with some of the foreign policy ideas advanced by Sen. Barry Goldwater, Kennedy said these and other proposals backed by some conservatives would lead the nation into a "dangerous world of retreat—not of strength."

Kennedy did not mention by name the Arizona Republican who may be his GOP opponent in the 1964 presidential campaign. But he included some Goldwater policies in a catalogue of what he termed unacceptable proposals advanced by ultraconservatives.

Adds 8,000
In a major address Thursday night before a full house of 8,000 at the historic Mormon Tabernacle, Kennedy argued that these policies would be "fatal to our national security" and "invite a Communist expansion."

Without question, Kennedy in this speech went farther than ever before toward challenging Goldwater. But he went beyond that and took issue with the whole political force often labeled "the radical right."

He did so in a state where conservative sentiment, always strong, has seemed on the rise.

Takes Credit
The President contended that under the policies of his administration "the Communist offensive has been thwarted and turned back in recent months."

He insisted the gains could be lost by a return to conservative attitudes which he likened to those of the McKinley era.

In particular the President criticized proposals to break off diplomatic relations "with all states whose principles we disapprove" and to withhold aid from countries "whose governments are fundamentally different from our own."

Will Keep Pace
"We shall continue to keep pace with the growth of our community and will continue to provide the best in service for our depositors," Boice concluded.

Board of Regents Appealing For Additional School Funds
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The State Board of Regents announced—and increasingly difficult—effort to win greater appropriations from the Legislature was under way today.

The board's monthly, two-day meeting, which began Thursday, was devoted mostly to drafting requests for funds in the fiscal year beginning next April 1.

The final item on the agenda today was a luncheon conference with legislative leaders to explain and seek support for the record spending program.

No details were announced immediately by the board, governing body of all education in the state. But unofficial estimates point to an increase of nearly $100 million in spending for public education from kindergarten through graduate school.

The Legislature has committed itself to an increase of at least $60 million next year—the amount of additional state aid to education due under a three-step plan for implementing the Diefendorf Committee program.

The 1962 session of the Legislature approved an increase of $20 million a year in state aid to education, to an annual total of $1,059,000,000.

The increase is being implemented gradually, with the goal to be reached in the 1964-65 school year through a final boost of $60 million.

While the state administration and the Legislature are expected to come under pressure for greater increases in state aid to schools, prospects for any such higher spending are remote.

The next state budget will be extremely difficult to balance on (Continued on Page 8, Col. 5)

Alderman Is Appointed For Ward 4

Mayor John J. Schwenk today announced appointment of Donald Tucker, of 169 Murray Street, as Fourth Ward alderman, effective Oct. 1.

Republican candidate for the post in the November election, Tucker succeeds Robert P. Slover, of 315 Hasbrouck Avenue, who announced his resignation Sept. 10 to become effective Sept. 30. He had served 21 months Tucker's term ends Dec. 31.

Served in W W Two

A Kingston native, Tucker is a graduate of the Immaculate Conception School and Kingston High School. He is employed at IBM.

A veteran of World War Two, he served as a gun runner on a B-17, he is a member of Immaculate Conception Church and its Holy Name Society, the White Eagle Benevolent Society, Joyce-Schirick Post, VFW, and the National Little League. He is married to the former Lorraine Christiana, and they have eight children ranging in age from three months to 16 years.

Capable, Says Mayor

Mayor Schwenk, in announcing the appointment, said, "While I regret Alderman Slover's having to terminate his position as alderman, I am confident that Mr. Tucker will complete his term capably, and be an efficient representative of the people of the Fourth Ward."

Slover, in his letter of resignation to the mayor, gave as the reasons for his resignation: "increasing responsibilities in my work, a recent illness, and a desire to give more time to my young family."

The bank acquired the property for the purpose of future expansion. The Weisberg property adjoins the rear of Ulster County Savings Institution located at 280 Wall Street.

No Change Planned
There will be no immediate change and Weisberg's Specialty Shop will continue to operate as usual, Daniel Weisberg informed The Freeman.

Boice stated that because of ever increasing activities in the field, Ulster County Savings Institution must constantly be on the alert to provide increased facilities for its depositors. The bank's total assets exceed $40,000,000.

"Through the mortgage department we have provided mortgage financing for over 3,000 families in this area," president Boice stated. He pointed out that the bank will pay out in dividends to its depositors over the year a sum in excess of $1,300,000. He also advised that more than $7,000,000 was loaned to mortgage borrowers in the past year thus providing a tremendous impact on the local economy.

Will Keep Pace
"We shall continue to keep pace with the growth of our community and will continue to provide the best in service for our depositors," Boice concluded.

BRIDGE Lead Comes Up to Strong Hand

BY OSWALD JACOBY

The Jacoby Transfer Bid (JTB) has numerous advantages, but outstanding among them is that it makes it possible for the no-trump hand to be declarer so that the opening lead comes up to the strong hand. This advantage age is greater after an opening two no-trump because there are more high cards in the closed hand.

In the Billings, Mont., regional every South player opened with two no-trump. There was no reason to make any other bid. The bidding went various ways from that point, but most pairs landed at either six spades or six no-trump.

Six no-trump never made. West always opened the jack of hearts. Eventually South would have to lead a club from dummy, give West two club tricks. When North became declarer at six spades he made it except when East opened a club. There were several club openings.

The JTB players landed at six spades with South as declarer. Some got there via the Blackwood route. Others used the bidding shown in the box. North transferred cue bid diamonds and finally invited the slam by going to five spades. This didn't put any great burden on South. He had the right kind of hand to accept the slam invitation.

The play was even less of a burden. South had some worries after the heart opening but he played two rounds of trumps and when both opponents followed to the second trump lead the worries were over. South was able to ruff dummy's last diamond and to discard two of dummy's clubs on high hearts. This left him with only one club loser.

Trucker Killed

ESPERANCE, N.Y. (AP) — A tractor-trailer driver was killed and Route 20 was blocked for several hours today when the tractor-trailer slammed into a bridge railing in this community west of Albany.

State Police said Charles H. Wood, 35, of Pittsfield, Mass., was thrown from the big vehicle after it hit the railing on a bridge spanning Schoharie Creek.

The truck apparently failed to negotiate a slight curve, troopers said.

Route 20 was blocked by the tractor-trailer which was wedged across the highway between the bridge supports. Traffic was rerouted.

Cerebral Palsy Study Launched On $32,000 Grant

A study of interest to every parent with a cerebral palsied child and to all workers in the Cerebral Palsy field has been launched by United Cerebral Palsy. The study is supported in part by funds from the Ulster County Cerebral Palsy Center located at 400 Broadway in Kingston.

Under the $32,000 grant from the Research and Educational Foundation of UCP, a long range medical study will be conducted by the American Academy for Cerebral Palsy to determine effectiveness of the various treatments currently used in cerebral palsy.

The study seeks to answer such questions as: What type of treatment should each patient have? At what age should treatment be instituted to obtain maximum benefit? Which patients are amenable to treatment? What factors contribute to success of any treatment?

This UCP-sponsored program has already started under guidance of American Academy committee on evaluation and treatment of cerebral palsy, chaired by Dr. Henry H. Banks, clinical associate in orthopedic surgery, Harvard Medical School. It will be conducted at Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston with Dr. Miriam O. Tachdjian, former clinical fellow in orthopedic surgery as principal investigator.

There are 600,000 cerebral palsied persons in this country. Each year 10,000 babies are born with Cerebral Palsy, caused most often by brain damage before or during birth. Last year over 350 persons from Ulster County were served by the local Treatment Center. Work in Cerebral Palsy—involvement treatment—is also applicable to speech, hearing and muscular handicaps resulting from crippling diseases.

"So much new knowledge about Cerebral Palsy and so many schools of thought have developed in the past decade," Lawrence Jensen, president of the local affiliate explained, "that new criteria must be established for diagnosis and treatment of the condition."

Since its inception in 1949, United Cerebral Palsy has channeled six and a half million dollars into research and training projects.

The Ulster County affiliate, from its Community Chest and personal fund drives, contributes to this research through its memberships with the national organization. Information from national research, legislative and educational programs is passed directly on to the local center for use in its daily program of diagnosis and treatment of children with physical handicaps resulting from cerebral palsy as well as other crippling diseases.

This year funds necessary to continue this vital program are being solicited during September in all townships outside of the Community Chest area.

Helps Free Animals, Loses Own Freedom

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—A 16-year-old boy who helped release 11 animals from the city zoo last month has been sentenced to an indefinite term in a state reformatory.

The boy, Roman Szewczyk, had pleaded guilty to a charge of malicious mischief. He was sentenced Thursday to the Elmira Reformatory Center by City Judge Jacob L. Serling.

A similar charge is pending against another 16-year-old boy. The two were accused of breaking open the animal cages Aug. 31. Two elk that escaped were shot to death and another elk died of exhaustion.

All of the other free animals were recaptured, with the exception of a racoon.

Two Killed When Train and Fire Truck Collide

ONEIDA, N.Y. (AP) — A fire pumper hurrying in response to an alarm at a burning garage —

The New York Central Railroad's North Shore Limited hurrying from New York to Chicago —

The two met at a grade crossing Thursday night in this Central New York City. The two firemen riding the truck were killed.

No train passengers were injured.

The watchman at the crossing on Willow Street said the fire truck went around the lowered gates at the crossing. The collision tore the truck in half and the train continued on for a mile before the crew could halt it.

The two firemen were Capt. Edward C. McCulley, 34, father of four, son of the retired chief of the city fire department, and a veteran of 14 years in the department, and Paavo Siivonen, 30, married and stepfather of two children.

Work was started this year on a $5-million project to reroute the railroad tracks and eliminate the grade crossings in the city.

Seaman Defended

NEW YORK (AP) — Defense counsel for a Coast Guard petty officer has told a court martial that the defendant "did everything in his power" to prevent the flooding of a Brooklyn drydock and the Coast Guard tugboat Tamaroa.

Boatswain's Mate 3c Harry D. Lane, 21, of Poughkeepsie, is on trial on misconduct charges. He is accused of turning valves and causing the seagoing tug to keel over and flood on the night of March 13-14.

The prosecution says Lane sought to avoid further service on the craft. Damage to the tug and drydock has been set at $970,000. The defense counsel, Lt. Cmdr. Forrest E. Stewart, sought unsuccessfully to get a verdict of innocent before the defense opened its case Thursday.

Doctor Notes TB Increase in N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP)—Tuberculosis, thought to be near extinction a few years ago, has had an alarming resurgence in New York City this year, reports City Health Commissioner Dr. George James.

In discussing the comeback of the disease Thursday, James said the number of TB cases increased 12 per cent in the first eight months of this year. He estimated there would be 5,000 new cases this year, about the same number as in 1959.

In Albany yesterday, a spokesman for the State Health Department said the TB increase in New York City "may portend" a similar rise in urban areas Upstate. However, the first six months of 1963 shows fewer cases outside of New York City than in 1962. In 1962 there were 1,080 cases reported from January to June. From January through June this year the count was 852 new cases.

NEW DRUG CONTROLS

It is a good general rule that the federal government's restraints on industry should be held to a minimum consistent with protection of the public. In some industries, little restraint is necessary or desirable. In others, far greater control is justifiable.

The drug industry is a prime example of this. The nature of its products justifies—indeed, demands—careful federal regulation to assure that drugs are both safe and effective, and to guard against their misuse. Though the drug industry is not happy under such tight rein, the public interest is served.

The other side of the coin is that the Food and Drug Administration should not be high-handed in imposing restrictions. It should proceed with deliberate care, with all possible regard for the rights of the manufacturers.

Happily, this seems to be the FDA's intent and practice. A current example is provided by its careful approach to possible new regulation of drugs that might cause pre-natal damage to babies. The thalidomide episode has served to raise a general warning flag with respect to various drugs taken by pregnant women. The FDA is reportedly formulating policies to strengthen protection of the public.

Further testing of products now on the market may be required, and some non-prescription drugs may be shifted to a prescription basis so that physicians become responsible for deciding whether use of a drug is indicated. Precautionary labeling of some drugs also is being considered. It is a point worth noting that in all this the FDA is not being precipitate, but is giving due consideration to the scientific uncertainties involved. That is very much as it should be.

BASEBALL FIRST AID

What is to be done about the New York Yankees, perennial winners of the American League pennant, who now have gained their 21st flag in 28 years? Obviously no pennant race can arouse interest long when its outcome is known before it starts.

Professional baseball might take a tip from professional football, says Hal Lebovitz of the Cleveland Plain Dealer. The baseball structure is built around the reserve clause, whereby a player who once signs with a club can never get away again without the club's consent. Football has no reserve clause. The professional belongs to his club for only two years, after which he can sign with any club he likes.

This freedom has not wrecked professional football, nor would it be fatal to baseball. It would give other teams a chance for the Yankee stars, and add immensely to the pennant race. The big leagues may not be ready to take this step soon, but they had better do so if they care for their pocketbooks.

TOO MANY STATISTICS

Too many of the arguments against the Welfare State philosophy are based solely on economic grounds. Sets of king-sized statistics show us that the costs are staggering, that they steadily increase, generating momentum within themselves, and that, even at best, much of the money wrung from the taxpayers never reaches the supposed beneficiaries. It is lost in administrative overhead.

These are enormously important matters, but they fail to tell the whole story. In the long view, the worst aspect of the Welfare State is its impact on human character. Thrift, self-reliance, independence, a sense of family and community obligation—these and other such essential virtues go out the window. The attitude becomes—why should we worry, the government will take care of us.

Thus are the sinews of a nation sapped. Thus does it grow frail and flabby. Thus, ultimately, is the door opened to the destruction of representative government.

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN
"TITOISM" IS JUST WHAT
KHRUSHCHEV WANTS

The recent meeting of Khrushchev and Tito in Yugoslavia had a play-acting quality. There were the embraces in front of the photographers, there were the flowers offered by children. But what did either of the dictators walk away with that was worth the expensive show of amity?

Certainly nothing of a tangible nature was exchanged. Khrushchev apparently gave no assurances to Tito that he could have anything more from Russia than what had already been promised in a previous trade agreement (industrial equipment in exchange for ships and tractors). As for Tito's gifts to Russia, they consisted only of reiterations that Yugoslavia was anti-Mao and anti-Albanian, which Khrushchev knew anyway.

The intangibles of the meeting, however, will pay huge dividends to both dictators in the masquerade of "peace" that the Kremlin has decreed for the next epoch in the history of the West. For Tito, there is the benefit of knowing that his ways of organizing his economy (decentralized workers' councils, individual peasant agriculture) have had the tacit blessing of the Kremlin as a "variant orthodoxy" in following the path to socialism. Marxist theoreticians outside of China and Albania will henceforth cease to pick on him, which should please his ego immensely. As for Khrushchev, the existence of Tito is about to present the Soviets with a foreign policy gambit that could be worth forty divisions, not to mention a couple of sixty megaton bombs. Titoism, in the future, could be Khrushchev's unanswerable secret weapon, a ploy that will enable him to have his cake and eat it, too.

This is so obvious that it is amazing that official Washington has said nothing about it. Despite pious disclaimers, the inclination of our policy-makers is to bet on Khrushchev's trustworthiness. Crediting Khrushchev with honor, Kennedy has been patiently waiting for the Russians to take their soldiers out of Cuba. Well, if Khrushchev is to capitalize on the "image" of trustworthiness (and there is every indication that he intends to), he must somehow seem to disassociate himself from Marxist revolutions wherever they threaten. To get the benefit of "peace" while he is retrieving his mistakes in agriculture, Khrushchev must stop "exporting" revolutions.

He could, of course, turn over the business of fomenting socialist upheavals in South America, Africa and Southeast Asia to Mao Tse-tung. But this would present Mao with an international propaganda victory that the Soviets have sworn to prevent. However, if a revolution can be decked out in Titoist colors, Moscow can safely deny any official connection with it and still reap the benefits.

Tito's visit to Latin America provides the Kremlin with a tremendous opportunity of cashing in on the have-cake-and-eat-it-too policy. The more successful the Tito triumphal parade can be made to seem, the better for all of Khrushchev's purposes. If Chile, for example, should vote a Communist-oriented government into office in the future, Khrushchev will be able to tell Washington that it was just part of Tito's persuasiveness. Merely an example of "indigenous" socialism, you know. Merely an exhibition of that "variant orthodoxy" that permits any nation to go socialist in its own way.

The danger in all this is compounded for the simple reason that our foreign policy blessed Titoism long before Khrushchev himself got around to it. We have given more than $2 billion in aid to Yugoslavia to finance its own "indigenous" socialism. How, then, could we logically refrain from blessing a "Titoist" takeover in Chile, or in Venezuela, or in British Guiana, or in Brazil?

Khrushchev may even get away with the miracle of throwing the protective mantle of Titoism over Fidel Castro. All he has to do is to remove his soldiers and technicians from Cuba, meanwhile permitting them to be replaced by technicians from East European satellites who can be supplied with "dissident" Communist backgrounds. Then, at an appropriate moment, Castro can announce himself to be a Titoist—and a penitential candidate for U. S. recognition. How, logically, would we be able to withhold this recognition?

Of course, Mao may get to Castro ahead of fake Titoist emissaries from Moscow. Let us, for the sake of clarity, hope that he does.

The DOCTOR SAYS

Rh Factor Can Condition
Baby's Arrival in World

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

One of the greatest hazards to the newborn is a result of Rh incompatibility. If your blood is Rh-positive you are one of the 85 per cent with this type of blood. The rest have Rh-negative blood.

This grouping has nothing to do with the A-B-O groups which must be determined before a transfusion is given. Rh-negative mothers who are married to men who are Rh-positive may give birth to babies who have erythroblastosis, a blood-destroying disease that caused many deaths before the cause was discovered.

A woman with Rh-negative blood may become sensitized to Rh-positive blood through having had a transfusion with Rh-positive blood or through carrying a baby whose blood is Rh-positive like the father's.

A woman who becomes sensitized during pregnancy but who has not had a baby with erythroblastosis has a good chance of having a baby that is normal. Or it may have a blood disease, which is mild and can be easily controlled with a few small transfusions of Rh-negative blood.

But once the mother is sensitized, the danger to the infant becomes greater with each succeeding pregnancy.

The erythroblastic baby may appear to be normal at birth, but becomes jaundiced within a few hours. The jaundice increases rapidly and may obscure the pallor that would go with the infant's anemia.

This anemia is due to the fact that the sensitized mother has developed antibodies that destroy the baby's Rh-positive blood cells. These antibodies are transferred to the baby through the placenta and umbilical cord.

In severe cases the baby can be saved if the possibility of the disease is recognized in advance and arrangements are made to give the baby an exchange transfusion.

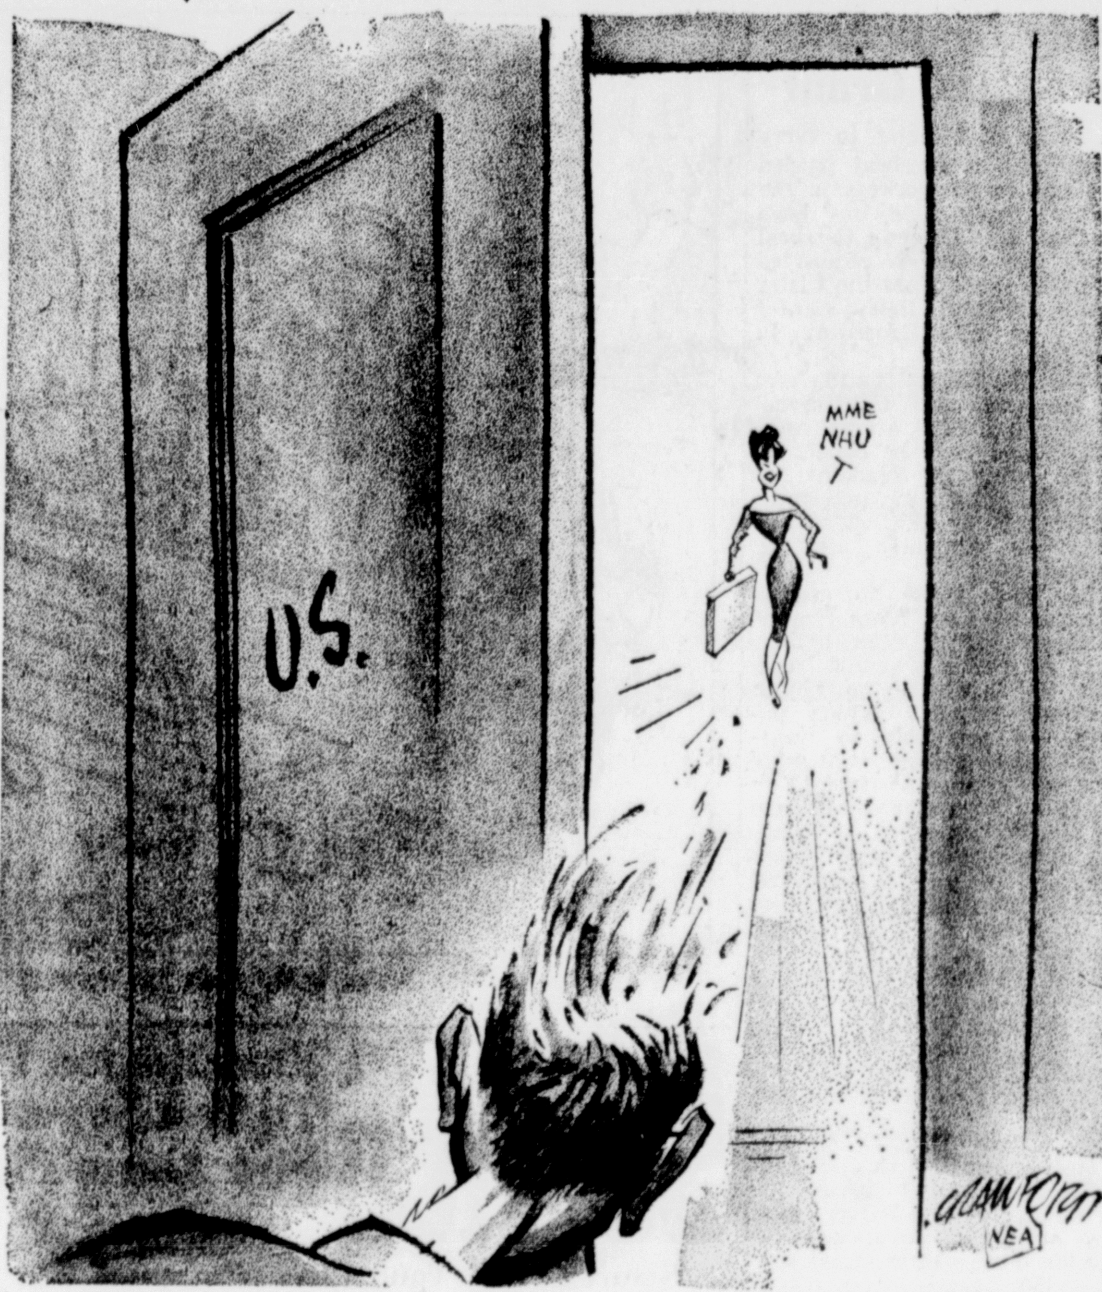

This is a massive transfusion that replaces all of the baby's Rh-positive blood with blood from an Rh-negative donor of the same A-B-O group. Since the mother's antibodies are destructive only to Rh-positive cells, the transfused Rh-negative blood is not affected and the baby survives.

When an Rh incompatibility is suspected, another procedure is also used to improve the baby's chances. Oddly enough, this is the induction of labor 14 to 28 days ahead of the expected date of delivery. This is because the transfer of destructive antibodies to the infant's blood occurs at an ever-accelerating rate in the last weeks of pregnancy.

Although, as pointed out in a previous column, the development of the baby in the uterus to full term has many advantages, this is one instance in which early induction of labor is the lesser of two evils.

victories within a year. Anyway, it's a very impressive prediction.

The Soft Sell

Washington News

BY PETER EDSON
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON — (NEA) —

The great American proclivity to sock somebody in the jaw when things don't go right is so strongly developed that it is recognized world-wide as a national characteristic.

It is particularly pronounced when the fellow who ought to get slapped is smaller than the one who wants to throw the punches.

This explains why some members of Congress want to cut off all the aid to little South Vietnam until President Ngo Dinh Diem kicks his brother Ngo Dinh Nhu out of office and makes him stop harassing the Buddhists.

It may also explain why Sen. Barry Goldwater wanted to tie a delayed ratification amendment onto the test ban treaty until the Russians get clean out of Cuba.

This proposal not only was intended to get even with Premier Fidel Castro, but also with Russia's Nikita Khrushchev.

It explains the barrage of verbal brickbats being tossed in the path of Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito, to welcome him on his visit to America in October.

Other international characters Americans have from time to time wanted to see socked are President Gamel Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic, Prime Minister Nehru and his Menon, of India, President Sukarno of Indonesia, Mao Tse-tung and the whole hierarchy of Red China, of course.

There are times, even, when President Charles de Gaulle of America's oldest ally—France—has seemed to warrant on his forthcoming U. S. visit a well-coming kick on the shins.

THE POWERFUL UNITED STATES, of course, could lick any or all of these individuals and their countries.

Yet the U. S. makes no move to overthrow any of these national leaders, either by force or by shutting off its aid. Because that doesn't work.

One of the arguments frequently cited by hot-headed Americans is that this country ought to follow the example of the Russians in forcing weaker nations to toe a given line.

The Russians did use force to suppress the rebellious workers of East Germany in 1953 and the revolutionary movement in Hungary, 1956.

But in both these instances the Russians had divisions within easy marching distance to suppress the rioters and keep them under control. In the areas more remote from Russian tanks, the Soviet has had no better luck than the United States in making upstarts say "Uncle."

THE FIRST BREAK with Russia was Tito, when he pulled out of the Cominform in 1948. Russia retaliated by boycotting Yugoslavia. When the West stepped into the gap and Yugoslavia showed signs of progress without Russian assistance, it was Khrushchev himself who went to Tito and arranged a reconciliation by diplomacy, not force.

Though Russia had a submarine base in little Albania, her Communist First Secretary General Enver Hoxha did not hesitate to tell Khrushchev to his face that he was a traitor to Marxism and Stalinism. Though the Russians have ranted at Hoxha, he continues to thumb his nose at them and gets away with it.

Why Tax Cut Is Pushed Ahead of Civil Rights

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — There'll be a tax cut beginning next January and another the following year. This is the outlook today as the House has passed the measure involving an 11 billion total reduction in taxes in two years. While the Senate may use up a few weeks in committee hearings and debate, it may find preponderant the reasons for enacting the new law this year instead of next year.

Opinions will differ as to whether the country will be benefitted by passage of a two-step $11 billion reduction in taxes raising the Treasury deficit to above $8 billion next year and entailing further deficits in the next two or three years. But whatever viewpoints may be held about the wisdom of the plan, the fact is that tax legislation now will produce an immediate impact on the national economy. Business is already scrutinizing the measure and trying to guess the results — the extent of the "shot in the arm" that may be expected and what will happen when the initial effects wear off.

The Republicans in the House tried to attach an amendment which would make tax cuts contingent on a reduction in budget expenditures. By a margin of only 27 votes the amendment was defeated. A change of 14 votes would have put the amendment across. Some expected support from Southern conservatives was not forthcoming. The reason is that many members felt that an opportunity to hold expenses down would come anyhow with each appropriation bill.

The big question at the moment is what the tax cuts will do to or for business. The revision of tax rates favors the individuals in the upper and lower brackets. The citizens in the middle bracket get no comparable treatment. The theory advanced in favor of this strategy of the Administration is that people in the higher income brackets have been experiencing virtual confiscation of their earnings and, when they get relief, they will promptly put their funds to work by investing in securities. This is supposed to produce a plentiful supply of money for expansion of plant and equipment and for new enterprises and maybe even a drop in interest rates. Unfortunately for the theorists, it hasn't been lack of funds for expansion which has stunted America's economic growth in recent years, but a failure of profits to keep pace with the rise in volume of sales and output. Higher and higher wage scales have not been accompanied by an increase in productivity which is so necessary to a balanced economy.

The main argument made by President Kennedy for the tax bill is that it will stimulate consumer spending. The experience of the 1930s shows that temporary rises in consumption do not bring prosperity or cure high unemployment.

The Administration realizes that, for political purposes, temporary prosperity can be fruitful. Hence the pressure to get the tax bill through this autumn so it will begin to take effect in January 1964. As the taxpayer gets a cut in the taxes withheld from his paycheck, the assumption is that he will go happily to the polls in November to express his gratitude to the incumbent administration. But, unfortunately, the savings are relatively small to the vast majority of tax-paying families — amounting in many cases to less than 50 cents a day.

So it's the sum total of increased turnover or volume in business which will count. Will it produce the feeling of "good times"? If it does, the Administration will benefit for a while. Economic history, however, shows that prosperity comes and stays for a long while only when conditions justify a capital-goods expansion. This requires not merely a temporary but a long-range program to stimulate the economy. Plenty of funds are already available for investment if a fair margin of profit increases should come into sight.

Business planning requires a careful appraisal of the future trend. Even this very month there are many company executives who are trying to figure out what to do about 1964 budgets. For an expected decrease in corporation taxes next year is not the only factor. It is important to appraise the outlook for 1965 as well as 1964 and judge on the basis of past experience whether the stimulus furnished by the revision of tax rates will be more than a passing phenomenon.

Not only must Federal tax legislation be taken into account but the rise in state and local taxes. Some taxpayers will find the savings made on Federal income taxes offset to some extent by increases in state and local taxes and by a rise in the prices of consumer products.

But, from the Administration point of view, it is important for the new tax bill to be gotten through Congress before next January, so that business men can indeed do some advance planning and so that the economic effects may be felt by the country before the November 1964 Presidential election. If the bill were to be postponed till the January session of Congress, as some opponents will try to do, this could bring confusion in planning and in computing current taxes and "cash flow" for 1964.

That's why the Administration has given priority to the tax measures over "civil rights" legislation. Negro leaders are being told by the Administration that it's more important to help create jobs so racial discrimination can be lessened than it is to plunge Congress into a long filibuster on "civil rights" and cause the tax-revision bill to be unduly delayed. From the Administration viewpoint, of course, this is good logic on the political as well as the economic side.

Hinges on Support

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration's attempt to clear the way for any Soviet offer to buy U.S. wheat appeared today to hinge on public and congressional support.

Two Cabinet members, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman and Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges, met Thursday with members of the House Agricultural and Foreign Affairs committees with inconclusive results.

There was little indication any administration decision would be made before next week. President Kennedy is scheduled to return to the White House next week from a Western trip.

The three principal fertilizers are phosphoric, nitrogen and potash.

Medical Records

Identify Body as College Dean's

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—Dusty medical records in a Westchester sanitarium provided the link that led to the positive identification of a body preserved for 30 years in the deep cold waters of Lake Placid.

State Police closed their books Thursday on the bizarre case with the notation that the body was that of Mrs. Mabel Smith Douglass, 36, dean of a New Jersey women's college who was last seen rowing on Lake Placid Sept. 21, 1933.

Skindivers found the body last Sept. 15 on a ledge about 95 feet down. Through a natural phenomenon involving substitution of mineral salts and other chemicals for body tissue, the body was, in effect, a cast of the person that existed before.

Longtime residents recalled the disappearance of Mrs. Douglass in the same general area. They could remember no other instance of a woman drowning and her body not being found.

Characteristics Match

The characteristics of the body — height, weight and build — matched what was known of Mrs. Douglass.

No living relative could be found. State Police launched a search for dental records and began tracing the last days of Mrs. Douglass.

One of the places checked was the college in New Brunswick, N. J., where she served as dean. It now is called Douglass College in her honor.

There it was learned that the woman had suffered a nervous breakdown and had gone to recuperate at the Four Winds Sanitarium in Cross River, Westchester.

Yes, the records still existed.

They showed that, while at the sanitarium, she had fallen and suffered a broken upper right arm. The Lake Placid body bore such a mark. Identification was established.

Her death was logged as accidental, since there was no proof for any other verdict, State Police said.

The skindivers had reported seeing a rope around the neck of the body. It was attached to an anchor, they said.

The rope and weight were lost when the body was brought to the surface. State Police said it could not be determined, therefore, whether the rope was knotted or whether the woman had become entangled accidentally.

Also, Mrs. Douglass was alone in the boat when last seen.

Last night, Dean Ruth M. Adams of Douglass, which is a unit of Rutgers, said the college would claim the body and arrange for interment.

Doctor Is Hurt In Dutchess Crash

While driving his 1962 sports car west on Slate Quarry Road, Rhinebeck, at 2:25 a. m. today, Dr. Reuben Lattimore, 34, of Washington, D. C., lost control and the vehicle careened into a ditch and hit several mail boxes. Rhinebeck State Police reported Dr. Lattimore suffered multiple lacerations and contusions of the body and possible back injuries. He was taken to Northern Dutchess Hospital and admitted for X-ray examination and treatment.

According to a report of Trooper Glenn Held, Dr. Lattimore's car was equipped with a safety seat belt, but it was not in use at the time of the accident. The physician was not ejected from the vehicle.

Troopers said Dr. Lattimore told them after the accident that he had a driver's license but apparently left it at home. Troopers reported they checked with Washington authorities and learned that the physician's license had been revoked a couple of months ago.

Upon release from the hospital, Dr. Lattimore will appear before Justice of the Peace Clarence Traver, Town of Rhinebeck on the license violation, troopers said.

Mac Ponders New Term

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan retired to his country home today to ponder the biggest question of British politics—will he seek another term?

His decision, he told the nation in an emotional television interview Thursday night, will take no account of the Profumo scandal. "I shall have only one thing in mind," he said, "what is best for the country and the Conservative party."

With argument still raging over Lord Denning's report and its accusation that Macmillan failed to meet his responsibility in the Profumo affair, the prime minister left for Chequers, his official country residence 33 miles west of London.

He invited Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York to lunch with him there, Rockefeller is on a European tour. Macmillan's decision probably will not be known until November, after Parliament has debated the Denning report. An important factor will be the reception Macmillan and his key ministers receive at next month's Conservative party conference.

In his television interview, Macmillan said he had failed to act promptly against former War Minister John Profumo because he had been deceived by Profumo's lies that he was not having an affair with prostitute Christine Keeler.

Harold Wilson, leader of the opposition Labor party, in a separate television appearance repeated his charge that Macmillan's conduct of government had contributed to a letdown in public morality. He said Macmillan should be held responsible for a gap in Britain's security system which he said the Profumo affair had exposed.

Schroeder Sees No Big Gain in Gromyko Meeting

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—West Germany's foreign minister joins those of the United States and Britain in preparatory talks today amid a growing feeling among Western diplomats that no wide agreement will ensue from the forthcoming encounter with the Soviet Union's Andrei A. Gromyko.

In advance of his meeting with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Lord Home of Britain, Gerhard Schroeder of West Germany was reported agreeable to Saturday's Rusk-Home exploration with Gromyko provided prospects for German reunification are not hurt. Rusk and Home met Thursday and were said to believe that while some secondary accords may be possible soon—such as a step-up in U.S.-Soviet communications and trade—movement will be slow on political issues.

Appointment was announced today of L. Wallace Cross as assistant comptroller of Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. during the utility's board of directors meeting.

Cross, a resident of Laffin Lane, Poughkeepsie, has been serving as assistant to the comptroller since last February. "I got my working papers at 15," Valachi said. "My first job was on a scow."

"How long did you work legitimately before you turned to crime?" Mundt asked.

"I'd say about a year, all told," Valachi replied.

Under questioning from McClellan, Valachi said he now is serving three sentences in the federal penitentiary in Atlanta—two of 15 and 20 years each for narcotics conspiracy, and one a life sentence for a murder committed while in prison.

Valachi was asked whether he was a member of any secret criminal organization.

"Yes, I am—or I was," he said, adding that he had joined the group in 1930.

What is the name of the organization?" McClellan asked.

"Cosa Nostra in Italian, Our Thing or Our Family in English," Valachi said.

Nearly a score of husky U.S. marshals surrounded Valachi to make sure no harm befell him as he was driven into a courtyard of the old Senate office building and hustled into the hearing room.

Valachi smiled nervously as he was led to the witness table.

No Word on Curfew

Ellenville police said today no official word has been received from the Village Board of Trustees on a proposed curfew for the two nights preceding Halloween.

The curfew was recommended at a recent meeting to Mayor Eugene Glusker by Village Trustee Jerome Elkin. Board members were of the opinion that 10 p.m. each night would be sufficient time to allow school children to participate in the Halloween parade and other events planned at the school. The curfew would have involved children up to the age of 16.

Edie Weakens, Still Menacing

SAN JUAN, P. R. (AP)—Erratic hurricane Edie weakened somewhat early today as it roared up between the western end of Puerto Rico and the neighboring Dominican Republic. It still packed a dangerous punch of winds, rain and stormy seas.

Winds of 100 miles an hour at the hurricane's core slackened to 75 miles, while storm tides as high as eight feet above normal dropped to four to six feet above normal.

D.R. Warning Stays

The U.S. Weather Bureau at San Juan continued to maintain a hurricane warning for the Dominican Republic east of San Pedro de Macoris, including the Peninsula de Samana, although it added that some further weakening in the storm could be expected as it crossed the eastern tip of the Dominican Republic.

Gale warnings remained in effect for the west of Puerto Rico, where heavy rains were reported. The Weather Bureau urged residents near rivers to be prepared to move to higher ground. Low coastal areas were evacuated Thursday night.

The bureau warned of possible floods, especially along the southern slopes of the lush central Cordillera Mountain region in Puerto Rico, where tobacco, fruit and sugar cane are grown. Edie baffled the Weather Bureau by its disorganized behavior Thursday. It settled on a course through the 50-mile wide Mona Passage between Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic, an old hurricane route.

Banana Crop Hit Hard

The storm destroyed about half of the $6 million banana crop of the British West Indian island of St. Lucia.

Edie's heaviest blows were inflicted Wednesday on the French island of Martinique. Reports to Paris said tens of thousands of persons were left homeless and 70 per cent of the island's buildings were damaged.

Mexico was battered by two storms of near-hurricane strength. One headed in from the Pacific toward Lower California, while the other howled in from the Gulf of Mexico.

Five days of torrential rain left 40,000 persons homeless in the southeastern state of Tabasco. At least seven towns were flooded. Newspaper reports said 25 persons were dead or missing.

Third Quintuplet Feeds on Bottle, All Acting Normal

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP)—A third Fischer quintuplet went exclusively to bottle feeding Thursday after she pulled her feeding tube off her face. All five quintuplets were reported "acting like normal babies."

Mary Margaret, the last-born, was the latest of the premature babies to end feeding through plastic tubes attached to the quintuplets' noses. James Andrew and Mary Magdalene, placed exclusively on bottle-feeding Thursday, got another increase in feedings today.

Dr. James Berbos, who delivered the babies to Mrs. Andrew Fischer, 30, Sept. 14, said the switch to bottles indicates the quintuplets are growing strong enough to handle the tiring sucking chore.

A spokesman for St. Luke's Hospital said the babies continued to be active, raising their feet and turning in their Isolettes.

Word Came to Mean Appeasement

Munich Agreement Signed 25 Years Ago Sealing Czechoslovakia Fate

By CARL HARTMAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — It was the day "Munich" came to have a new meaning and the umbrella became a bitter symbol.

It was the day, 25 years ago when Adolf Hitler and the premiers of France and England signed the Munich agreement sealing the fate of Czechoslovakia.

"Munich" came to mean appeasement. Political critics today still speak of "another Munich" to condemn real or imagined failure to stand fast in the cold war that followed Hitler's downfall.

It all stems from a crisis that had the world on the brink of war in September 1938.

Declares No Waiting
A week before the Munich meeting Hitler brought the crisis to a climax in a meeting with Chamberlain at the Dreesen Hotel at Bad Godesberg.

There Hitler declared he could no longer wait for a popular vote in the German-speaking border areas of Czechoslovakia—the Sudetenland he coveted. At Berchtesgaden only a week before he had agreed to the voting. Now he insisted on marching in and occupying the area's fortifications by Oct. 1.

Neville Chamberlain was shocked—but he didn't say so. The Munich agreement, virtually as Hitler wanted it, was signed between 2 and 3 a.m. Sept. 30, 1938, at the Fuehrerbau, the building where Hitler had his Munich office.

Is Conservatory Now
The structure still stands, and that section where the conference took place is occupied by the Munich Conservatory of Music.

At Bad Godesberg you can still have Hitler's room—106. One of the Dreesen family will explain that the bed is now in a different spot, but the black-and-green tiled bathroom is the same and so is the wonderful view of the Rhine and the wooded hills beyond.

Chamberlain made his first trip to Germany after the French urged him to make the best deal he could on Czechoslovakia, which they were bound by treaty to defend. Hitler had him go all the way to Berchtesgaden at the extreme southeast tip of Germany, then an all-day trip from London by air and rail. It was the first time that Chamberlain, 69, had been in a plane.

The talks were held in Hitler's favorite residence, the Berghof, on a mountain overlooking Berchtesgaden. (Badly damaged in the war, it has been rebuilt as a restaurant.) Hitler took Chamberlain into his study, the same room where seven months before he had browbeaten Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg into surrendering Austrian independence.

Chamberlain agreed that Hitler could have the Sudetenland "on the basis of self-determination"—that is, the local population would decide by a vote. There was resistance but the Czechs had to give in.

Then at Bad Godesberg, Hitler reneged. War loomed almost certain despite all the British and French could do. They urged Hitler's fellow dictator—Benito Mussolini of Italy—to mediate. But the two dictators agreed that they must one day fight the West side by side.

They met Chamberlain and Edouard Daladier, the French premier, in Munich, Sept. 29. Czechoslovakia was not invited, nor was the Soviet Union, which insisted on its readiness to fight for the Czechs if the French would.

Promises Not Kept

Mussolini presented a compromise drafted for him in Berlin. The German occupation of the Sudetenland was set for completion Oct. 10 instead of Oct. 1. Everyone promised a vote later and guarantees for the rest of Czechoslovakia—promises that were never carried out.

It took 13 hours to arrange the details. After a few hours' sleep, Chamberlain brought Hitler a pledge that the agreement before was "symbolic of the desire of our two peoples never to go to war with one another again." Hitler was quick to sign.

"I believe it is peace in our time," Chamberlain told a jubilant crowd when he returned to London.

Starts Taking Over

Less than six months later Hitler took over the rest of Czechoslovakia, and six months after that he invaded Poland. Britain and France then declared war.

What France and Britain should have done in the Munich crisis still is controversial.

In his history of the period, Winston Churchill speaks of the "tragedy of Munich" and says:

BABSON on BUSINESS

By Roger W. Babson

BABSON PARK, Mass., Sept. 27—Investors are always studying with the greatest care those economic factors that seem to shape the trend of the stock market. This is all very well, but now and then I like to point out to my readers that unexpected events are often the most powerful influence. The way our stock market system is set up in our democratic society permits the wildest ups and downs in investment prices when unforeseeable events come like a bolt out of the blue.

Lessons of History

I can always learn a great deal simply by reviewing the effects of unexpected events on business and the stock market over the past one hundred years or so. Starting at the time of the Civil War, business was relatively stable and promised to climb in a healthy way following the end of the war. Then came President Lincoln's assassination one of the most unexpected events in our history—and stocks tumbled sharply. The crash was followed by a year of depression. Thereafter, business boomed until the corner on the gold market brought a sudden plunge known to financial men of the time as "Black Friday."

Stocks made a good comeback and investors were feeling generally optimistic about the future when two apparently non-economic events occurred: The Chicago Fire in late 1871 and the great Boston Fire in November 1872. These set the stage for another financial panic. The market was making a recovery from this setback when the great banking house of Jay Cooke and Company suddenly failed. The shocking announcement resulted in the first closedown of the leading Stock Exchanges for several weeks, seeding the deep depression that began in 1873 and went on for a number of years.

Still More Unexpected Happenings

A new flood of investment selling was brought about by the sudden shooting of President Garfield on July 2, 1881. Out of this panic came the unsettling failure of the great banking house of Grant and Ward and one of the two most important "bulls" of the period, Henry Villard and James R. Keene. As usual, another depression came along after these unexpected events and lasted a few years. Prosperity prevailed generally in 1892; then came a shattering blow in 1893: The failure of the National Cordage Company. This firm was then one of the nation's ten largest, and was considered a real "Blue Chip."

The next year, like a flash of lightning, came the nation's first serious walkout, the Pullman Strike. Pessimism spread across the country, increased still further by a rash of crop failures and mortgage foreclosures. By 1897 conditions were again so bright that forecasts of permanent prosperity were once more being made. Stock splits, large security offerings, and mergers were the order of the day. Then, in 1903, came another unexpected happening: A Supreme Court decision followed a charge of "undigested securities" involving investigation of leading life insurance and transit corporations which were then extremely popular. All these events were truly unexpected. But then came another totally unforeseen

"For the French government to leave her faithful ally, Czechoslovakia, to her fate was a melancholy lapse from which flowed terrible consequences. The British government not only acquiesced but encouraged the French government in a fatal course."

Had the French honored their pledge to fight for Czechoslovakia, many people believe, Britain and the Soviet Union would have followed suit. The Czechs had a considerable army.

Inside Nazi Germany a conspiracy of generals, already organized, might then have toppled Hitler and prevented World War II.

Others think Chamberlain did as well as could be expected.

Lord Home's View

Lord Home, Britain's present foreign secretary, was with Chamberlain in Munich.

In a recent interview with the London Observer, he said:

"I think the main thing to grasp is that Chamberlain like many others saw communism as the major long-term danger. He hated Hitler and German fascism, but he felt that Europe in general and Britain in particular were in even greater danger from communism."

His views are largely shared by Paul Schmidt, German Foreign Ministry official who was chief interpreter between Hitler and Chamberlain. Schmidt, now 64, heads a private school for interpreters.

"Today, 25 years after the signing of the Munich agreement," he told The Associated Press, "I still believe as I did most sincerely in September 1938 that the Big Four of Munich achieved a result which was beneficial to mankind as a whole."

"Munich 1938 was a good thing although it was short-lived and ended in disaster less than a year later as a result of Hitler's betrayal and his policy of brinkmanship, the failure of which should serve as a lesson to all present day brinkmen."

occurrence: This time it was the San Francisco earthquake!

The Influence of Wars

Interference with business by the federal government kept market prices soft in the early 1900's, but things went well after our entrance into World War I until 1920 when stocks lost ground due to very high interest rates. After this situation was corrected, the market went skyrocketing until it hit what were then the all-time highs of 1929. I do not have to elaborate on the depression of the 1930's. Starting in 1938 business began a recovery that continued throughout World War II, but the stock market did not do much until 1942. Then came a long upward climb, with only temporary interruptions.

The reason I give readers an occasional historical review of this sort is so they will never forget that, no matter how sure one may feel about future trends, an unexpected event can throw the situation completely out of whack. Seasoned investors keep this fact in mind at all times.

Students Seized For Hoax Call On School Bomb

Accused of making a hoax telephone call to the Cossack-Athens Central School reporting a bomb was in the building, two students were taken into custody Thursday afternoon by Leeds State Police.

BCI Investigator Robert T. Brenzel said he arrested George Petrigliano, 16, and Eugene Kurner, 17, both of Cossack, on disorderly conduct charges. The section of the penal law deals with false bomb reports.

Petrigliano is a junior at the school and Kurner is a senior.

Brenzel said the youths were arraigned yesterday before Justice of the Peace Arthur Webster, Town of Catskill, and both waived preliminary examination. The case was referred to the Greene County grand jury. Brenzel said the youths were in the county jail last night.

Mother Who Gave Up Babe Now in Father's Custody

Mrs. Patricia Louise Zimmerman, 25-year-old Poughkeepsie mother, accused of abandoning her new-born infant son in a parked car in the Greene County Memorial Hospital lot on Monday, was arraigned today before Justice of the Peace George E. Carl, Town of Catskill.

Mrs. Zimmerman, who authorities said admitted she gave birth to the baby at her home on Garden Street and later drove to the hospital property and left the child in a car, was released in custody of her father. The hearing was adjourned until Friday, Oct. 11. No bail was fixed.

The mother, who police said is legally separated from her husband, Kenneth, now a Rochester resident, was taken into custody by State Police BCI investigators and Poughkeepsie detectives, who traced her to her home through a car registration plate.

Senior Investigator James P. Buckley, of Leeds, who directed the investigation after the baby was found following a telephone call to the hospital, said Mrs. Zimmerman admitted she was the mother of the infant, which was born about seven hours before it was placed in the vehicle at the hospital employees parking lot.

JFK Sees . . .

aspects of life, the days of the quiet past are gone forever.

And with the help of present policies, he contended, "the Communist offensive has been thwarted and turned back in recent months."

Most Important Speech
This was the most important speech Kennedy has made during his 10,000-mile Western tour. And he delivered it in a state—and in a Rocky Mountain region—where conservative sentiment has seemed on the rise.

The President's schedule today was another heavy one, starting with a Salt Lake City airport talk dedicating the $66-million Flamingo George Dam miles away near the Wyoming border.

Kennedy, in remarks prepared for the ceremony, said this project on the Colorado River "stands in the finest traditions of federal-state cooperation and public-private coordination." He noted that federal, public and private power systems would share the fruits.

At the Mormon Tabernacle, the enthusiastic audience twice applauded Kennedy's defense of the nuclear test-ban treaty as "one chance to end the radiation and the possibilities of burning."

The President said the treaty "is important as a first step, perhaps to be disappointed, perhaps to find ourselves ultimately set back"—but a step, nevertheless, toward avoidance of nuclear disaster.

Kennedy said the nation has experienced a real wrench in turning from isolationism to internationalism since 1941.

"I see it in the letters that we cannot do every day," he said, declaring that involvement abroad represents a strain evident "all over the country."

Summarizing what he termed current confusions, Kennedy said: "We find ourselves entangled with apparently unanswerable problems in unpronounceable places. We discover that our enemy in one decade is our ally in the next. We find ourselves committed to governments whose actions we cannot often approve, as existing societies with principles very different from our own."

In this situation, he said, it is little wonder that "we look back to the good old days with nostalgia" and lament the fact that "our policy seems to have lost the black-and-white clarity of simpler times when we remembered the Maine and went to war."

This of course, was a reference to the time of the McKinley administration and the Spanish-American War of 1898.

Declaring that such a time is gone forever, Kennedy said it would be folly to heed those who "counsel retreat" to isolationism.

Would Deprive Vote

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The 32-nation African group mustered support today for a move to deprive South Africa of its vote in the current General Assembly. But the group was not agreed on a proposal to drum Portugal out of the world forum.

Informed sources said the U.N.'s biggest single bloc would ask the assembly to declare the South African delegation's credentials invalid, thus depriving the white supremacist government of voting rights during the 18th session.

Marquette Firm Cited for Best Annual Reporting

NEW YORK — For the 19th consecutive year Marquette Cement Manufacturing Company is to be honored for excellence in annual reporting. The independent board of judges in the Financial World Annual Report Survey, headed by Dr. Joseph H. Taggart, executive dean of New York University Schools of Business, today announced its finding that the company's 1962 annual report is best in the cement industry.

Symbolic of the achievement, an Oscar-Industry trophy will be presented to Marquette's Board Chairman, W. A. Weeks, at a banquet in the grand ballroom of the New York Hilton Hotel on October 30.

Senator Barry Goldwater will make the principal address to an audience of 1,000 business, financial and industrial leaders.

This puts Marquette in possession of 24 such awards. These include two gold Oscars for the best of all annual reports issued within the year, three silver trophies for the best of all manufacturing company reports, and 19 industry awards. This record of acclaim in the field of annual reporting is unequalled by any other company in the United States.

More than 5,000 annual reports were reviewed in the 1963 competition. All were subjected to a critical process of elimination to determine the best report in various industrial classifications.

In the cement industry category, Permanente Cement Company was runner-up for top honors and Lehigh Portland Cement Company placed third.

SAC Links With Spain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Strategic Air Command has started sending small groups of B58 bombers, the nation's fastest long-range nuclear bombers, on regular transatlantic flights to Spain.

This was learned today on the heels of a new U.S.-Spanish agreement extending American base rights in Spain for five more years.

The agreement, signed in New York late Thursday, covers three SAC bases and the Rota Naval Base.

The Air Force said the 1,200-mile-an-hour B58 began operating from the United States to the Moron Air Base in Seville and the Torrejon Air Base within the past few weeks.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING...

Disabled Investor Must Prune Portfolio

Q "I am physically incapacitated but have sufficient income to live comfortably and actually accumulate additional money. I now have $5,000 to invest. My present holdings are Bethlehem Steel, Southern California Edison, Studebaker, and Signal Oil. I would like a suitable 'substitute' for these stocks, and I suggest changes in my present holdings."

A "I offer my sympathy on your physical affliction and am very much pleased to learn that you can live comfortably. Your list of stocks is satisfactory with the exception of Studebaker. This company has been incurring losses from its automobile production. I would sell on the introduction of the new 1964 models.

Bethlehem Steel is showing no signs of growth, due to industry conditions, but the dividend now looks safe.

Signal is a sound, integrated oil, showing steady improvement in the last three years.

For investment of your $5,000 in cash, I suggest General Motors.

Q "Periodically, I have my broker review my account but they always O.K. it with no suggestions. My securities are worth $112,000 and I have other income. Savings account is only $2,000. I owe my broker $5,000 on margin. I would like to build my savings reserve and pay off the margin account. If so, what stocks should I sell?"

A "Brokers are more frequently (and more falsely) accused of over-activity or 'churning' an account than they are of failing to make changes. I think your broker should be commended for leaving intact what is on the whole a good list—rather too long to be printed here.

I will make two suggestions. Sell Chesapeake & Ohio which will not much more than cover its dividend this year. Dispose of your Martin Marietta, which has lost ground in earnings in 1963. With the proceeds you could pay off your margin account and add about $3,400 to your savings account.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column.

Vehicles Recovered

Highland state police today reported two vehicles reported stolen in that area Wednesday night or early Thursday have been recovered. Sergeant E. E. Winkly said a 1963 station wagon owned by Harry Keater, Wallkill, was found abandoned on the dead-end of Cannon Street in the community. The tires had been stolen from the vehicle. A 1957 convertible owned by Lloyd Thompson, New Paltz, reported stolen yesterday morning, was found abandoned in Newburgh, troopers said. Investigation of the thefts will be continued by Highland BCI investigators.

South Vietnamese foreign aid program in Congress.

When she finally reaches the United States on her present trip to the West, officials said, Mrs. Nhu will not be invited to talk with any leading American authorities in spite of her important and highly vocal position in her own ruling family. If she asks to speak with anyone at the State Department she will be directed to an official at one of the lower levels of policymaking. But no one wishes to confer a kind of cheap martyrdom on her by making it appear that she was completely turned away or denied any hearing at all.

So far as the major issues of policy in the continuing Vietnamese crisis are concerned, Mrs. Nhu is regarded as buzzing about the real problems without actually being involved with them. The decision for Lodge to answer her is cited as an example. He spoke to her in the military offices because the military officers thought someone should make a reply in their defense, not because there was any diplomatic judgment of a need for a reply.

Migrant Takes Off After Altercation

Two migrant workers employed on the Jack Gill corn fields at Hurley were involved in an assault Thursday about 5 p. m., resulting in one being hospitalized and the other disappearing.

Ulster County Investigator Thomas Mayone, assisted by Deputy Sheriff John Turey were called to the Hurley farm Thursday afternoon when Betty Lou Brown, 21, was reported to have been hit over the head with a wine bottle and then struck with a chair by James Price, another migrant worker.

It was alleged Miss Brown had been cut on the head when struck with a wine bottle and also received abrasions and lacerations of the scalp when a chair was broken over her head during an argument.

After the attack Price "took off," County Investigator Mayone said and was believed to be hiding in the nearby corn field. Miss Brown was taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctors Ambulance Service where she was admitted for treatment.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

NEW YORK (AP)—The annual fall television explosion will soon be over and the new and old shows established in their evening network spots. The next loud noises will be the complaints that it is not fair to judge a series, anywhere from 13 to 36 programs, on the basis of one show.

The pleas will come from parties whose initial offerings received harsh treatment from reviewers. Such a cry has never once passed the smiling lips of anyone connected with a show that drew rave notices.

It probably is a bit unfair to judge on the basis of one program. But there is impressive evidence to indicate the public does just that in picking its pet shows. By the end of next week, all network programs will be settled in their time periods. By the middle of October, most "heavy viewers" will have decided which programs they will follow. The report by a national rating service which estimates audience sizes will be issued a couple of weeks later.

Evidence indicates it takes about three weeks of sampling the new schedules for the audience to make choices. And the ratings indicate the public usually sticks by its early selections.

Four new programs will make their debuts over the weekend and a dozen established programs will resume new shows.

College-Community Orchestra Rehearsal Set for October 1

The College-Community Orchestra of State University College, New Paltz, will hold its first rehearsal of the new season Tuesday evening, Oct. 1, at 7:15 in the Music Room adjacent to the auditorium in the main building.

At this time preparation will begin for a concert to be presented at the College on Tuesday evening, Nov. 26. Directing the group will be O. Lincoln Igou, professor of humanities at the State College, who has been the orchestra's leader since 1946. "We anticipate an outstanding year of orchestral activity," said Mr. Igou in discussing future plans. "Within another week, we hope to be meeting in our new home in the theatre wing of the Fine Arts Building. The growth of the student body here at the college, not to mention that of the community itself, will bring with it a larger number of potential orchestra members who, in turn, should make for an increase in both quantity and quality," he said.

The orchestra is the only music group at the college which continues to include community participants who come from many areas on both sides of the Hudson River. There are opportunities for serious and interested string players ranging from violinists to bass violists, as well as for some wind musicians, particularly those who have had orchestral experience with French horn or bassoon. "However," concluded Mr. Igou, "if you are interested in joining this strictly-for-fun group of amateurs and professionals, bring your instrument, no matter what it is, and join us Tuesday evening. Then we can decide where to go from there."

Delayed Sympathy

Q: The mother of a friend of mine passed away two weeks ago. Although this friend lives in this city, I only learned of her mother's passing today. I am extremely sorry about this and feel sure she must think me very uncaring. Is there anything I can do now to show my sympathy?

A: Either go to see her or write a note telling her that you have only just learned of her sad loss and how very sorry you are not to have expressed your sympathy before this.

Signing Gift Card to Son's Fiancee

Q: Will you please tell me how to sign the shower gift card to my future daughter-in-law? Do I sign it Mrs. John Jones, Mary Jones or "Mother Jones?"

A: Your signature on the card is properly, Mary Jones. Or if you prefer, you may sign the card, "With fondest love from your mother-in-law-to-be," or "... from John's mother."

Signature on Greeting Cards

Q: When sending a greeting card to a relative, should it be signed with one's full name—Jane Brown, for example—or should it be signed with one's first name only? A friend and I were discussing this the other

Choosing First Child's Godparents

Q: Is it necessary that the young man and woman who were the best man and maid of honor at our wedding be asked to be godparents for our first child which I am expecting soon? I have been told that it is customary to ask them and not to do so would be slighting them. I had intended to ask a cousin of mine to be the baby's godmother. May I please have your opinion as I don't want to cause hurt feelings.

A: You may ask whoever you please to be your baby's godmother, and there is no necessity whatever to ask your maid of honor and your husband's best man to be its godparents.

Asked to Bring a Partner

Q: I received an invitation to a party and at the bottom of the invitation it says to bring a partner. I do not know any boy well enough to ask him to go to a party with me. Must I decline the invitation or may I go alone?

A: If you know the hostess well, you can call her and ask her if it will be all right to come to her party alone. Otherwise, it will be best to decline the invitation rather than run the risk of being the only one without a partner.

Sylvia Fox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Fox, Box 364, RD 2; Grace Koch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Koch of RFD 4, Box 551; Leslie Anne Lawrence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Lawrence of 80 West Pierpont Street; Karen Sue Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Olson of RD 2, Box 460; and Margaret Rockwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Rockwell of Linderman Avenue extension.

Miss Fox is a 1963 graduate of Ontario Central School. The others are 1963 graduates of Kingston High School. Miss Koch, Miss Lawrence and Miss Olson were recipients of Kiwanis Club Nursing Scholarships. Miss Olson also won the Christina Kirk Scholarship, and Miss Lawrence received Scholarship Awards from Rapid Hose Co., and the 40 & 8 Society.

During the first year all students affiliate with State University College at New Paltz, which this year for the first time has adopted the new "four quarter" plan. The Kingston Hospital students spend four days a week at the college, where they complete 30 college credits of work and enjoy all privileges of the campus, including various social events. The fifth day they spend at the home school for instructions in fundamentals of nursing, pharmacology, professional adjustments and nutrition.

Later in the course, the students also affiliate for three months each with Children's Hospital, Buffalo, and Hudson River State Hospital at Poughkeepsie.

On successful completion of the three year course, each student receives a diploma and pin and becomes eligible to take the examination of the New York State Board of Nursing for a license to practice as a Registered Nurse in New York State.

The Kingston Hospital School of Nursing, established in 1893, is registered by the Board of Regents of the State of New York, and the hospital is accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals.

Anti-Trust Suits Dropped Against 18 Companies

CHICAGO (AP)—Eighteen companies have been dismissed as defendants in U.S. District Court in 28 antitrust suits charging them with conspiring to fix prices of heavy electricity generating equipment.

Judge Edwin Robson dismissed the suits Thursday after a report from four plaintiffs that an out of court settlement had been made, based on a formula for price adjustment. Terms were not disclosed.

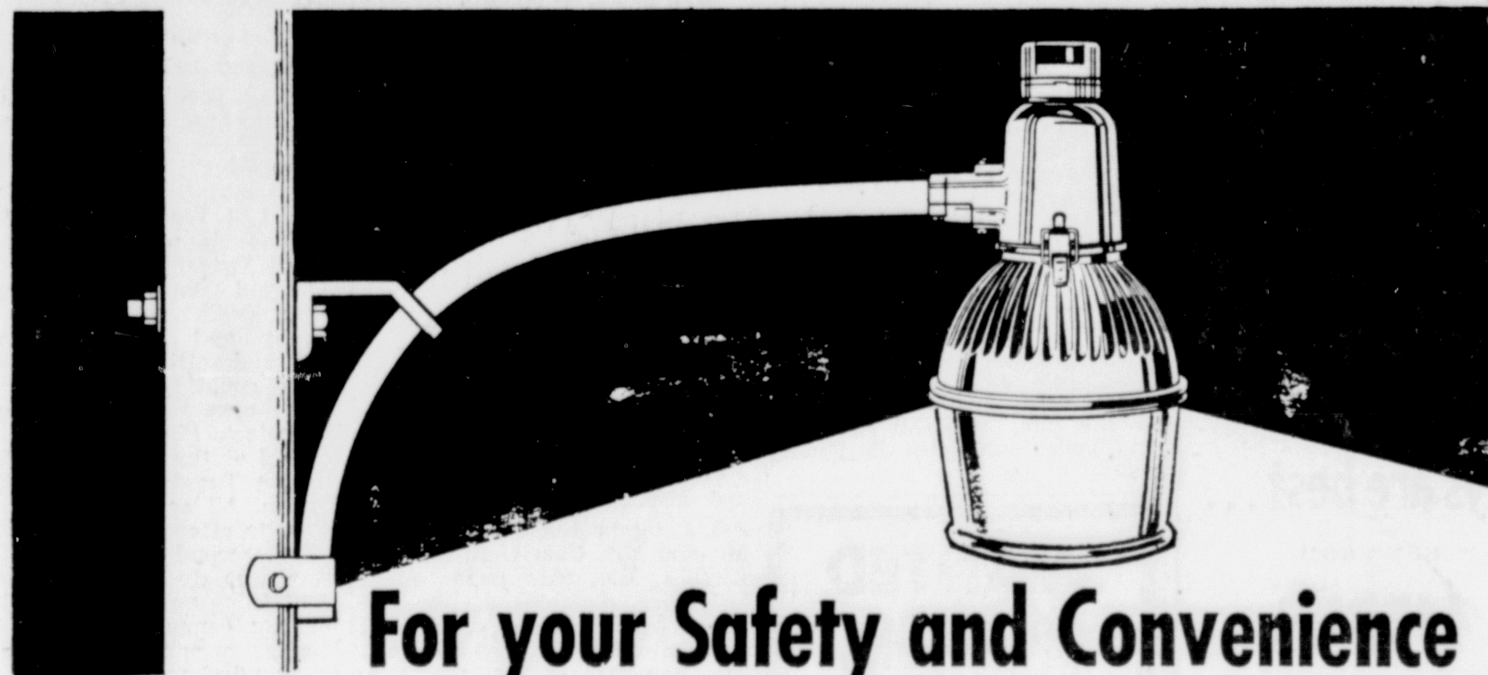

Negotiations are continuing toward settlement of suits involving the other defendants.

The 28 suits were part of 226 filed in Chicago as a result of the 1961 conviction of 21 electrical manufacturers on charges of price fixing. The utility companies suing the manufacturers asked treble damages.

Among the firms dismissed as defendants were Lapp Insulation

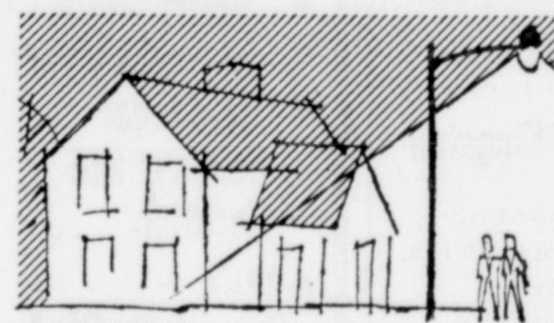

Co., Le Roy, N.Y.; Porcelain Insulator Corp., Lima, N.Y.; and General Electric Co., New York.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—If you're still having trouble telling the balance of trade from the balance of payments, brace yourself. You may soon be wondering what on earth is "international liquidity."

Fall Foliage Is Coloring Fast In State Areas

The pageant of fall color is proceeding rapidly in New York State, according to the latest local reports received by the State Department of Commerce. Peak color has been reached in a number of areas and several regions expect to reach full color brilliance within the week.

In the Adirondack Mountains, Piseco Lake-Oxbow Lake reports that the surrounding forests will be at peak during this weekend, a comment endorsed by northern Warren County. At Tupper Lake and the Central Adirondacks around Old Forge, color is listed as close to full brilliance, a condition expected to last a week to 10 days. Reds are moving into peak coloration at Lake Placid, with yellows and browns due to follow by October 5, and about half the leaves have already turned at Ausable Chasm, Color in the southern part of Warren County, in the Lake George area, is just beginning a peak period. Hunter Mountain, in Southern New York, is nearing peak color. Color is now at full brilliance in Delaware County, and about at the half-way mark in Sullivan County.

At Belleayre Mountain foliage is at peak color and the chair lift is operating.

Foliage around Albany is almost at peak, and is reported as advancing rapidly in Schoharie County.

In Central New York, color is just beginning in the region around Binghamton, while Cooperstown reports that full color could be reached this weekend.

Farther west, the color change has started at Genesee Gorge, south of Rochester. Color in the Finger Lakes is moving more rapidly this season and a peak is predicted by early October.

Allegany State Park, in the southwestern corner of New York, says that full color is at the mid-way point, with a peak due about October 1.

Little color is evident on Long Island as yet, the most noticeable being dogwood trees and early-turning shrubs.

Some of the international bankers who will meet in Washington next week already are saying that we think, may become a concern at the level of jobs and profits.

Liquidity Oils Trade
International liquidity is the monetary or credit resources that oil the trade among nations. It is determined by the amount of reserves of gold and foreign exchange held by various countries, plus their easy access to credit.

The United States has provided, in large part, this fiscal oil for trade since World War II. Huge totals of dollar loans and grants and, of late, big stacks of the U.S. gold hoard have furnished the liquidity that the world has needed.

Now the United States is getting pretty worried about its role. The reason: The liquidity now largely is in the form of dollars held by foreigners—the surplus of all the outgoing dollars over the incoming ones earned by our exports, investments and various services.

About $7 billion of these surplus dollars have been turned in for U.S. gold. Now and then the United States has to squirm a little under the eyes of those wondering about the dollar's reputation and the chances of maintaining its stated value.

Urge Others to Help

So today the United States is urging that some of the needed liquidity for international trade (which all admit is a necessity) be provided by others. At the same time, some of the bankers gathering in Washington next week for the meetings of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund will be warning that even today's high level of liquidity may not be enough to handle the flow of world trade that present goals of prosperity will require.

Without this flow, many American corporations would feel a profit pinch, and many workers would either lose their jobs or find hope for new ones had failed to materialize.

The United States first scoffed at these warnings, but in recent days has suggested that the international bankers start a study of future needs and ways to meet them.

The fire destroyed the main building and an undetermined number of boats, deputies said. The cause of the fire was not determined.

Prospects Good For 'Zenda' as Broadway Musical

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Early in the second act of the new musical "Zenda" the villain made the motion of hurling a dagger at the hero.

The dagger, which was to pop out of a box in a bit of stage trickery, arrived about 30 seconds too late.

It was one of those onstage mishaps that brought a big laugh from the audience, and the performers, too. To some patrons it seemed to emphasize the hit-admiss quality of the show. But by the final curtain the hits seemed to outnumber the misses, and "Zenda's" chances for Broadway success appeared better than average.

"Zenda," which will open at the Mark Hellinger Theater Oct. 26, is a product of Los Angeles-San Francisco Civic Light Opera, which gave the theater such hits as "Song of Norway," "Kismet" and "Peter Pan." It has also provided distinguished flops like "Magdalena" and "Three Wishes for Jamie."

Edwin Lester, general director, has mounted "Zenda" with the impeccable taste that marks all his civic light opera attractions. It has three top stars, direction by George Schaefer, music by Vernon Duke, dances by Jack Cole.

The idea of musicalizing the Anthony Hope novel, "The Prisoner of Zenda" (filmed in 1922, 1937 and 1952), seems to be a good notion. The plot structure is sturdy enough to bear the weight of a musical without being too intricate to slow things down.

Why, then, is "Zenda" not an unqualified hit? The answer seems to lie in a clash of styles. The show is primarily an operetta, rare nowadays. The ponderous scenery, the sometimes florid acting style, the Graustarkian atmosphere are at odds with attempts to update the proceedings. The music also lacks the lilt that is necessary for a successful operetta.

Marbletown Legion Hall, Stone Ridge.

Lyrie Choristers, George Washington School.

Esopus Valley Bridge, Club Deane's, Woodstock.

Kingston Chapter, SPEBSQSA, Inc., Elks Club, Fair Street.

Aretas Lodge, 172, IOOF, Odd Fellows Hall, Broadway and Brewster Street.

But there are assets that help offset these factors. The performers come through superbly, Alfred Drake, possibly the best bravura star of the musical stage, gives utmost skill to the tricky, dual role.

Chita Rivera, late of "West Side Story" and "Bye Bye Birdie," again shows her versatility as the king's fiery mistress. Anne Rogers, who played "My Fair Lady" 1,700 times, rounds out the starring trio.

Hoople Seeks Perfect Record This Weekend

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
Peerless Pigskin Prophet

Egad, friends, what a way to start the football season. This learned observer, using all the knowledge at his command, and then some, selected 14 winners in 15 games. Those Huguonots out New Paltz way spoiled an otherwise perfect week by throwing a pass into the wrong hands and losing to Millbrook.

Ah, such is life. With 14 winners you would think I would get nothing but tons of fan mail. Alas, I did get mail but it was from those who noticed that I had one game picked wrong.

They tell me that Albany High School has some gladiators in football uniforms. Well, don't let that worry you. Coach Bill Hurley of Kingston has his players running through brick walls this week. As a result, they will come down the Thruway singing praises after their 13-7 win.

My unclouded crystal ball also sees Saugerties beating Arlington, 20-6, and those Indians from Ontario scalping Rondout Valley, 13-6, in the upset special of the day.

In a recent lecture I gave at the New York School for Crackpots, I gave some secrets of how I picked winners in football. After the speech, I had to run for dear life because they thought I was a patient. Harumph!

Well, the only way to better 14 correct selections in 15 attempts is to pick 15 in a row. Harumph! Here goes. Paste these in your hat.

KHS Plays at Albany; Sawyers Host Arlington

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Key games in all three area leagues and a big non-circuit tilt between Kingston and Albany High at Blecker Stadium in the Capital City spice this week's grid card.

The action begins tonight as New Paltz plays at Liberty in a UCAL engagement. Saturday's UCAL tussles show Highland meeting Marlboro at New Paltz, Pine Bush playing at Wallkill and Rondout Valley hosting Ontario.

Poughkeepsie plays Middletown in the lone DUSO game on Saturday. In DCSL tilts, Arlington is at Saugerties, Wappingers at Cardinal Farley and Lourdes at Beacon.

In addition to the Kingston at Albany non-loop tussle, Goshen is at Port Jervis and Valley Central at Roosevelt.

A capsule comment of the top games:

KINGSTON AT ALBANY—

Two unbeaten, unscored teams facing each other and something has to give. The locals were impressive in beating Suffern, 21-0. On the other hand, Albany put on an equally good show as it toppled Vincentian, 20-0. Chuck Leigh, ace halfback, will be back for the upstarters while Oscar Palmer, KHS starting halfback, is also expected back in action.

ARLINGTON AT SAUGERTIES—

Another team takes a pot shot at the longest winning streak in the state, which is now at 24 games. Arlington gave Newburgh a tussle before bowing, 20-6, in its opener. The Sawyers gave indications of fielding another powerhouse in their 28-0 verdict over Highland. This might be an individual duel between Richie Giannotti of the home side and Arlington's John Repsher.

ONTEORA AT RONDOUT VALLEY —

Word from Boiceville is that the Indians are on the road back to gridiron fame. This is a good test for the visitors, who upset the Ganders last season. Rondout showed a lot of spunk in beating Dover Plains while this marks the initial start for Onteora. It figures to be a good, interesting contest.

POUGHKEEPSIE AT MIDDLETOWN —

The Middies are seeking a third straight DUSO crown and they figure to be too strong for the Pioneers, who have been stripped of veteran talent. The Middies lost a lot but they still have a fair nucleus back from last season.

PINE BUSH AT WALLKILL —

A big UCAL engagement between two powerhouses. Pine Bush nearly missed upsetting Valley Central last week. Wallkill is seeing action for the first time and has Eddie Mooney gone. However, most of the other starters are back and the team figures to be in pennant contention.

In tonight's game, Liberty rules a solid favorite over New Paltz, which is in a rebuilding process. In Saturday's other DCSL games, Beacon should topple Lourdes without too much difficulty while the CFMA-Wappingers game is rated a tossup.

Port Jervis is a top heavy favorite to whip Goshen and the Valley Central-Roosevelt contest is a pick-em affair. They are both non-league contests. In the other UCAL tilt, Highland is favored over Marlboro in what promises to be a close battle.

Member-Member

Titles Decided

At Wiltwyck CC

Teams consisting of Maurice Davenport and Ken Davis and Sam Levine and Bud Stewart have won their respective classes in the annual Member-Member tournament at Wiltwyck Country Club. This is a season long match play tournament.

Davenport and Davis rallied from a 2-down deficit on the front nine to defeat the pair of Dr. Charles Kovacs and Eugene Freer, 2 and 1, for the A title. The champions had beaten Tom Stenson and Art Motzkin, 1 up, in the first round, and Tubby Goodrich and Phil Battaglia, 2 and 1, in the semi-finals.

Levine and Stewart trounced Abe Streifer and Bruce Davis, 5 and 4 in the Class B finals. Earlier they had trimmed Bob Ronder and Al Mazzotta, 3 and 2, in the first round and Charlie King and Ed Martin, 3 and 2, in the semi-finals.

Tournament officials announced that the format may be changed to 36-hole medal play next year, due to the difficulty experienced in arranging matches among four players.

Everybody's Patsy

Smokey Alston Batting .400
As Manager-You Didn't Know?

NEW YORK (NEA) — Walter Emmons Alston, the quiet man, has won his fourth National League pennant with the Dodgers in 10 years.

That is batting .400. There is always room for a .400 hitter. So isn't it time they got off Smokey Alston's back?

For some inexplicable reason a large segment of the baseball population has been harking at Alston, a fine man and manager, from the day his appointment was announced in Brooklyn. This goes for baseball people in general, writers, telecasters and fans. The attitude migrated to Los Angeles with the franchise. Although Alston was the top manager in the chain with pennants in St. Paul and Montreal his being named successor to Charley Dressen at Ebbets Field came as a complete surprise to many. There had been talk of Pee Wee Reese and Cookie Lavagetto. So Alston was dubbed the bush manager.

The impression is that Alston has been harassed by the front office all the way along the line. Although Walter finished out of the first division in the system only three in 13 campaigns and had a hand in the development of a number of the Dodgers, he was not Walter Francis O'Malley's first choice when Mrs. Ruth Dressen wrote the celebrated letter to the club president after the 1952 season outlining husband Charley's terms.

O'Malley's first pick was Fresco Thompson, the old infielder and vice president in charge of farms.

Hired to Win

When Alston signed his first contract in the old Brooklyn club offices on Montague Street,

O'Malley said: "We didn't bring him here to finish second. We brought him here to win the World Series."

Detractors kept pointing out that Alston went to bat only once as a major league player and struck out. Well, that is one more time than Joe Mc-Carthy, a great manager, went to bat in the big leagues. It is one more time than Johnny

Keane, who guided the Cardinals through their recent tremendous run at the Dodgers, went to bat in the big show.

Playing the game well is one thing. Knowing it and being able to handle players is quite another.

Over His Head

Dressen and Leo Durocher,

former managers of the Dodgers, were hired as coaches over Alston's head. Pete Reiser, ambitious to manage after success in the navies, was brought in as a coach.

The highly articulate Dressen was given considerable credit for the Dodgers' comeback in '59.

After the frightful collapse in the final week of last season,

Durocher, the man about superior restaurants, was quoted as saying that he would have won with the club. Alston, the small town guy, took that in stride, too.

It is significant that baseball men second guessing Alston are careful about where they are when challenging him. They rarely do it in his presence and the handful who did hurriedly lost one-sided decisions.

Alston, the strongest woodworker ever to come out of crossroads Darrtown, Ohio, perhaps could lick anybody he ever managed except maybe Gil

Hodges, who never gave anybody but an opponent on the field the slightest trouble.

Walter Alston has won four pennants, lost another in a playoff and finished worse than fourth only once in a decade.

As I said, it's about time Walter O'Malley and his right-hand man, Buzzy Bavasi, put their outstanding manager on his own.

He hasn't paid any attention to those other guys anyway.

Walter Alston

Alston finished second in his maiden voyage in 1954. He won in '55, but lost to the New York Yankees, four games to three in the World Series. It was the year that he made good in every way, winning the flag and beating the Yankees for the first time in the World Series.

Since then he has bagged another pennant in a playoff with the Milwaukee Braves and smacked the Chicago White Sox in the World Series of '59.

But not until the recent sweep of the vital series in St. Louis has it appeared that Alston was appreciated.

Detractors kept pointing out that Alston went to bat only once as a major league player and struck out. Well, that is one more time than Joe McCarthy, a great manager, went to bat in the big leagues. It is one more time than Johnny Keane, who guided the Cardinals through their recent tremendous run at the Dodgers, went to bat in the big show.

Sooners To Oppose USC Team

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The first of the really big ones for the nation's ranking college football teams looms Saturday in the Oklahoma-Southern California clash, a game that could have a major bearing on the 1963 national championship.

The Trojans are defending national champions, currently hold the No. 1 spot in the country and have a 12-game winning string going. But in Oklahoma they face a rebounding band of Sooners intent on reclaiming the lost supremacy of a decade ago. They're ranked third.

The game in Los Angeles is scheduled for national television, CBS-TV, 3:30 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

Neither Coach John McKay of Southern California nor Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma was particularly pleased with last week's opening victories. Southern Cal had to work hard for a 14-0 decision over Colorado.

Oklahoma opened with a 31-14 triumph over Clemson, but trailed 14-7 at the half and the Sooners were treated to a rare tongue-lashing by Wilkinson at intermission.

Fourth-ranked Texas and seventh-ranked Northwestern, each 1-0, open conference play at home. Texas plays Texas Tech in a night game and Northwestern is host to Indiana. Northwestern beat a good Missouri team 23-12 last week while Texas blanketed Tulane 21-0. Texas Tech beat Washington State 16-7 and Indiana has not played.

Sixth-ranked Wisconsin opened with a 41-0 rout of Western Michigan, but Saturday visits South Bend, Ind., to help Notre Dame open its schedule.

Arkansas, No. 8, whipped Oklahoma State 21-0 in its opener, but may find the going tougher against a Missouri team that hopes to rebound from the loss to Northwestern.

Another toughie sends the Pitt Panthers, No. 10, after last week's 20-0 decision over UCLA plays Washington, which held the No. 10 position until losing to Air Force 10-7.

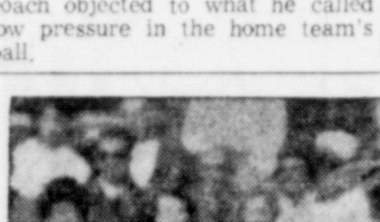

Among the other ranked teams, No. 2 Alabama goes against hapless Tulane at Mobile, Ala., in a night game. No. 5 Navy has William and Mary and No. 9 Georgia Tech is host to Clemson.

Near Riot Occurs After Grid Contest

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP)—A near-riot erupted Thursday night after the bitterly fought high school game in which Landry defeated Bishop Byrne of Port Arthur, Tex., 2-0.

Angry fans ran out on the playing field after a Port Arthur player was put out of the game for taking a swing at the referee on the last play.

Officials restored order before any serious incidents occurred. The game was marked by many penalties. Each side used its own football after the Texas school's coach objected to what he called low pressure in the home team's ball.

GIVES COUNTRY LEAD—Chuck McKinley gave the United States a lead in the inter-zone semi-finals of the Davis Cup when he beat Mike Sangster in Bournemouth, England.

Browns Are Favored To Win Third Straight

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cleveland figures to win its third straight but the other two unbeaten teams in the National Football League, St. Louis and Chicago, may be in trouble Sunday in the third week of the season.

The only two undefeated teams in the American Football League, San Diego and Kansas City, meet Sunday at San Diego in a game that could have an important bearing on the Western Division race.

Two Saturday night games are on the schedule in the AFL—Oakland at New York and Houston at Buffalo. All the other pro games in both leagues will be played Sunday.

Here's the way it looks this week, all games Sunday unless otherwise noted:

Hank Thompson, Ex-Giant Great At Rock Bottom

NEW YORK (AP)—They called him Donkey because he was willing to play anywhere, any time.

Hank Thompson came up to the New York Giants as a second baseman, played right field in the 1951 World Series when the regular man was hurt and was the star of the 1954 series at third base.

He will not be around for the World Series next week, or the next three or four after that, at least.

Thompson went to jail in Houston Wednesday, sentenced to 10 years for stealing a pistol and using it in a liquor store robbery. With good behavior he will be eligible for parole in four years.

"He was a real high-class guy, intelligent, well-liked by the other players," said Gary Schumacher, the veteran public relations man of the Giants.

"He would play anywhere. For years he was one of the real good players on the team. But he always had a drinking problem. When he drank he would do things that you just couldn't explain. It was like a shade came down over his mind."

Troubled Career

Thompson was in trouble in New York several times between 1958 and 1961. One charge was that he attempted to rob a liquor store where he was well known.

Last July in Houston he did almost exactly the same thing. Police arrested him in his own room only minutes after the robbery, involving $150.

The record book says he was born Dec. 8, 1925, in Los Angeles. Police records give the same date, but give Oklahoma City as his place.

"He hit over 300 for us one year," Schumacher remembered, "and he was a good, steady player—when he didn't drink. In the 1951 series, Don Mueller broke his leg in the playoff, and Thompson played right field."

Then in 1954 he really blossomed. He set a record for double plays started by a third baseman and was the team's leading nitter.

"The bourbon got to his legs," Schumacher said, "and he left after the 1956 season. After that trouble in New York, Horace Stoneham (owner of the Giants) got him a job at our spring camp in Arizona. He was around there last spring and then suddenly one day he just up and left. The next thing we heard of him he was in trouble in Houston."

U. S. Hopes for Davis Cup Victory

BOURNEMOUTH, Eng. (AP)—Chuck McKinley and Dennis Ralston faced the prospects today of a wet and windy doubles match that could give the United States victory over Britain in the inter-zone Davis Cup tennis final.

The American pair played Mike Sangster and Bobby Wilson of Britain with the U.S. team leading 2-0 after the opening singles Thursday and needing only one more victory to clinch the best-of-five series.

Weather men forecast high wind and rain, making the red shale court of the West Hants Club slow and treacherous.

Uncle Sam's men mastered these awkward conditions Thursday and outplayed their British rivals.

McKinley, of St. Ann, Mo., demolished Sangster 7-5, 6-2, 7-5, and Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla., beat Billy Knight 4-6, 8-6, 6-4, 6-4.

GIVES COUNTRY LEAD—Chuck McKinley gave the United States a lead in the inter-zone semi-finals of the Davis Cup when he beat Mike Sangster in Bournemouth, England.

RV Harriers Win Triangular Meet

Coach Art Stockin's Rondout Valley Central cross-country team opened their season by beating Fallsburgh and Ellenville in a triangular meet. The Ganders had 33 points against 34 for Fallsburgh and 53 for Ellenville.

Bob Poole of Fallsburgh covered the 2.3 mile course in 11 minutes, 59 seconds to win individual honors. Second was Ted Ayres, Rondout, with a time of 12:01.

Following the top two were Bill Daley, Fallsburgh; Bob Pittrell, Ellenville; John Wood, Rondout; Charles Black, Rondout; Sheldon Distner, Fallsburgh and John Stewart, Rondout.

Barry Spiegel clinched the narrow victory for the home side when he finished 12th. Rondout will be at Wallkill next Friday to oppose the defending UCAL champions.

Wins Championship

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Mrs. Charles Bartholomew of Brookline, Mass., overcame a first-round deficit of five strokes Thursday and won the 38th U. S. Senior Women's Golf Association Championship with a 36-hole total of 160. She posted a final round of 87.

Mrs. Charles Brainard of West Hartford, Conn., the first-round leader, finished four strokes behind with 164, with Mrs. Reinert Torgerson of Forest Hills, N.Y., third at 168.

OFFICE CAT

By Junius Trade Mark Reg.

Is the Universe All Wrong? Dark moments come to most of us. Problems, questions, doubts arise. We wonder what it's all about. We may become cynical and critical. The universe seems in a muddle. Things happen that we cannot explain; things that seem ironic, unfair.

It was in one of these moods the other day that I came across one of the finest bits of philosophy that I have ever read. It gave me a new angle of life. It takes the mind off the problems that have no solution anyhow, and focuses it on what we can do to make life more worthwhile for ourselves and others.

Here is the piece: (It is written by Henry Van Dyke. I wonder if these twenty-seven words will mean as much to you as they do to me.)

"Close your book of complaints against the management of the universe, and look around you for a place where you can sow a few seeds of happiness."

What if everyone did that? What if folks stopped finding fault and complaining about everything and simply tried to make life a little more happy for the other fellow? Wouldn't this be a great old world?

Jones approached his boss and asked, "Jones—Could I have Thursday off? It's my silver wedding anniversary."

The Boss (sharled)—Do I have to put up with this every twenty-five years?

Management Session

Emergency planning and industrial disaster control is a responsibility of management which does not, for various reasons, receive the same amount of pre-planning as other facets of operating a business. Yet, properly conceived plans, with duties assigned to specific employees, will greatly enhance a company's ability to withstand a serious industrial disaster.

This topic will be discussed at the regular meeting of the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Society of Safety Engineers, at Dunn's Restaurant, Latham, on Monday, Oct. 7, at 6:30 p. m., by Louis F. Metz, plant emergency administrator, Flight Propulsion Division, General Electric Company, Cincinnati, Ohio. Because of the unusual interest in this subject, members of industry in addition to safety personnel are invited to attend this meeting, and may do so by contacting Edward N. Deck, General Electric Company, Waterford.

Cooler Air Due During Weekend

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Extended forecasts, prepared by the U.S. Weather Bureau, from 7 p. m. today through 7 p. m. Wednesday:

Eastern New York — Somewhat cooler weather is expected most of the period with temperatures averaging a degree or two below normal. Cooler over the weekend and very little change early next week. Possibly a few scattered light showers tonight or Saturday mainly over north and central portions. Some rain is likely early next week with one half inch or more over southeast and lesser amounts in the north.

Western New York — Another period of cool weather is indicated with the temperature averaging 5-7 degrees below the normal. Cool over the weekend. Moderating briefly early next week but turning much colder again through mid week. Rainfall will average 1-10 to 2-10 of an inch, as widely scattered showers late Sunday and Monday.

Temperature normals — Daytime highs 67-75. Nighttime lows 46-55.

Exiles Eye Rebel Regime in Cuba Within 1 1/2 Years

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP)—Nicaraguan dictator Luis Somoza says he and Cuban exile leaders are mounting a new campaign of infiltration and harassment against Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

The push will begin with "special virulence" by November and a final strike, aimed at establishing a rebel government on Cuban soil, is expected "within 18 months," the Nicaraguan strong man and former president said in an interview Thursday.

Small groups of guerrillas are training at secret locations in the United States "without the knowledge of the American government," Somoza said.

However, it is an open secret within the Cuban exile colony at Miami, Fla., that rebels have been training in the Florida Everglades for some time.
